On the construction of The Theoretical system of English linguistics from a multi-dimensional perspective

Jia Zhang

Anyang Institute of Technology

20210026@ayit.edu.cn

Abstract

With the rapid social and economic development, the connection between countries is becoming more and more close, and the breadth and depth of China's opening to the outside world has been significantly improved. Therefore, English language education has been paid attention to by educational scholars, and the construction of the theoretical system of English linguistics is more and more in-depth. At present, The study of English linguistics in China has begun to integrate with other disciplines and put forward a multi-dimensional research system of English linguistics. On the basis of understanding the importance of multi-dimensional study of English linguistics, this paper mainly analyzes how to construct a linguistic theoretical system from three perspectives, so as to provide basis for relevant academic research..

Keywords

multidimensional Angle; English; Linguistics; The theoretical system.

1. The importance of studying English linguistics from a multi-dimensional perspective

To put it simply, the multi-dimensional perspective is to study English linguistics from different perspectives, the core content of which is to organically connect research results with other disciplines, and build a theoretical system of English linguistics according to the development trend of academic research. As one of the most widely used languages at present, English can not only be used for communication between people of various countries, but also become an effective connection channel between disciplines in the overall development of social science and technology. Therefore, this paper mainly discusses the theoretical system of English linguistics from a multi-dimensional perspective.

First of all, the basic function of language is to communicate, but different countries and nations have their own languages, so in the trend of economic globalization, the continuous development and continuous application of language can truly achieve the goal of cooperative exploration. According to the analysis of the current development situation, it is found that English is becoming more and more popular all over the world, so researchers are paying more attention to the study of English linguistics. However, the actual research results are not proportional, because the actual research perspective is too narrow, the field of discussion is too single, and the relationship between linguistics and other disciplines is not studied [1]. By analyzing the linguistic branch design shown in Table 1 below, it is found that in the context of economic globalization, it is crucial to study English language from a multi-dimensional perspective.

Secondly, language has developed into its present shape through many stages, and in a certain sense represents the development history of a country and a nation, which has a positive impact on the construction and research of human civilization. English is one of the most widely used languages nowadays. Under the trend of globalization, it is critical for countries outside the English language family to use multi-dimensional perspectives in the application and research of this language, which can not only master the key and difficult points of linguistics, but also obtain more valuable contents in empirical research.

Finally, with the steady social and economic development, the concept of network technology has been widely promoted, which gives people all over the world more opportunities and channels to contact the languages and cultures of other countries and have a close connection with their daily life. Therefore, the study of English linguistics must consider the influence of many aspects, and the construction of the theoretical system of English linguistics should also conduct longitudinal exploration based on the discipline to clarify the influence of social development on it, so as to provide favorable conditions for in-depth practical research, as shown in Table 2 below.

Table 1 Branch design of linguistics

| Internal branch | External branch |
|---|---|
| phonetics | psycholinguistics |
| semantics | sociolinguistics |
| Other law | Anthropological linguistics |
| pragmatics | Computational linguistics |

Table 2 Organic integration of linguistics and other disciplines

| The interdisciplinary | Interdisciplinary name |
|---|---|
| pedagogy | Educational linguistics |
| psychology | psycholinguistics |
| culture | Cultural linguistics |
| sociology | sociolinguistics |
| Political science | Political linguistics |

2. How to construct a theoretical system of English linguistics

In the core development of the language curriculum system, the study of English linguistics is not perfect, so it is necessary for researchers to explore how to construct the theoretical system of English linguistics from various angles, starting from the integration of economy and culture.

2.1. philosophy

The relationship between philosophy and linguistics is very close. The former, as a discipline observing the world, can provide effective basis for the development of the latter. The latter, as a language study, can provide communication channels for the former. According to previous research results, foreign scholars have explored the development process of English linguistics from a philosophical perspective, which provides a new channel for the development of linguistics and comprehensively expands the thinking space of relevant theories. Many philosophical works on English linguistics have produced research results. If the research content of English linguistics is regarded as the main objective of philosophical expression, then English linguistics not only contains philosophical factors, but also can gradually form a discipline field of philosophical linguistics with the practical development. In the course of the study of English linguistics, the philosophical category is first explored, followed by empirical research from the perspectives of psychology and sociology. The reason is that psychology and sociology represent philosophical thoughts in a certain sense [2]. Therefore, only with a deep understanding of philosophical knowledge can we reasonably apply psychology and sociology to explore English linguistics. The philosophical perspectives of this paper are mainly divided into two aspects: on the one hand, the philosophical thoughts of the country are explored based on the English language, mainly the thoughts and customs of the nation are analyzed by using vocabulary and sentences; On the other hand, language is used to explore the language charm and philosophical thoughts, so as to present the characteristics from the perspective of language philosophy.

2.2. culture

As a basic component of national development, language is also an effective expression of traditional cultural inheritance. Therefore, language research can be regarded as a process of exploring national culture and ideology. According to the analysis of the research results proposed by Professor Wu Guohua, an advanced scholar in China, it is found that linguistics and other disciplines should be combined for research and two symbolic systems should be constructed respectively. One refers to the linguistic structure, such as man and animal, and the other refers to the post-linguistic structure, such as culture and cultural products. Therefore, in the process of social and economic innovation and development, the study of English linguistics in China has taken on a more profound cultural color.

2.3. political science

The relationship between language and politics is very close, especially in the current social environment, English, as a universal language, plays an important role in both social economic and political development. From the perspective of political science, it is found that the construction of the theoretical system of English linguistics should start from two aspects: on the one hand, the application of language in national politics should be studied to accurately explore the political phenomena and policies of the country; On the other hand, it studies the metaphorical description of language, for example, how humans use metaphor to present their unique charm in cultural communication, economic cooperation, political negotiation and other fields.

3. conclusion

To sum up, In current English teaching, English linguistics, as a key research content, should be explored from a multi-dimensional perspective in combination with the development trend of modern society and economy, and a linguistic theoretical research system should be constructed in the way of faith. In the context of economic innovation and development, traditional teaching and research ideas and methods can no longer meet the research needs of modern English linguistics. Researchers in various countries should use multi-dimensional teaching guidance, mainly from philosophy, culture, politics and other perspectives to grasp the unique charm of English linguistics. And combined with the cultural differences between the East and the West to build a comfortable and appropriate teaching environment, so as to not only get a more perfect linguistic theoretical system, but also to truly understand the national spirit and ideological policies of western countries in language exploration, providing effective basis for the development of economic globalization.

reference

[1] Yixiang du. English Linguistics from a Multi-Dimensional Perspective: A Review of Modern English Linguistics from a Multi-Dimensional Perspective [J]. Journal of Shanxi University of Finance and Economics, 2021(1):1.

[2] Xiaogeng wu, Jing yang. Journal Theory construction -- Reflection on the Construction of world-class sci-tech journals from multi-dimensional Perspective [J]. Science and Technology, 2021(2):6.